TAG Commander™ Rugged Ultra-Mobile PC (UMPC) Featured in Carlson® Software's 3D Machine Control Solutions Launching at ConExpo 2011

Carlson® releases new integrated site management and positioning solutions for mining, landfills & construction at ConExpo 2011 with the TAG Commander™ featured as the ultra-mobile control box.

Las Vegas, Nevada — March 22, 2011 — Technology Advancement Group®, Inc. (TAG®) announces that the TAG Commander™, a rugged Ultra-Mobile PC (UMPC) / Tablet, is featured in Carlson® Software's next generation machine control and site management solutions being presented at ConExpo 2011. The fully integrated positioning and machine control solutions available from Carlson offer flexible site management software options that are powered by the TAG Commander™.

The TAG Commander's ultra-mobile rugged design is ideal in the automated vehicle and machine guidance markets that demand powerful components, versatile mounting options for field and in-vehicle field operations, and a lightweight handheld form factor for easy portability. Technology highlights include dual hot-swappable batteries, 7" widescreen display, and resistive touch screen interface with integrated front panel button controls, Intel® Atom™ processor, removable Solid-State Drive (SSD) and embedded wireless communications.

Carlson Software is showcasing at ConExpo a diverse product portfolio that supports most GNSS/GPS receivers with a global GNSS library collection of open standards and easy-to-use software interfaces. Designed for construction sites, landfills and mining operations, Carlson offers a complete suite of machine control solutions engineered from the ground up.
